covered. In a series of steps, hints and tips for working out non-verbal questions, Terrence Millington reveals what he calls his 'fail-proof' method that has been refined and perfected over the course of several years. He has already helped a high percentage of children to pass entrance exams in the subject, and has released this book in order to help as many more children as possible to achieve the same. The book can also be used effectively to help parents understand non-verbal reasoning. With a 'Message to Parents' section that offers advice on how to get the best out of the book, the author has provided a great opportunity for mums and dads who don't understand the subject to overcome this problem and help their children with questions. "I see non-verbal reasoning like mathematics; in maths you learn a formula and if you remember it you are able to answer any like question. I provide children with the formulae for non-verbal reasoning; if they learn my methods and techniques they should be able to answer any resembling non-verbal question." Terrence Millington comments on his reasons behind Mastering Non-Verbal Reasoning. cognitive (problem-solving) deficit as well as a linguistic deficit exists in individuals with acquired aphasia. Recognising cognitive deficits in terms of problem-solving may be a key factor in understanding why some individuals overcome their communication difficulties better than others. Failure to recognise problem-solving difficulties may lead to unrealistic expectations of therapeutic intervention and thus inappropriate management and goal setting. The BNVR requires the client to solve 10 everyday problems, presented in full-colour photographic format. It is short, requires minimal linguistic input, contains real-life situations and is likely to be suitable for non-English speaking individuals. It will be useful to speech language therapists, occupational therapists and psychologists who need to ascertain whether problem-solving skills are affected and to assist in multi-disciplinary team decision-making in acute and rehabilitation settings.
